

Welcome to the Course

Earn credit for interacting with an three-part interview series hosted by Dr. Sharon Givens, NCDAs President 2021-2022. This series was originally produced for the Career Practitioner Conversations with NCDAs podcast.

Discovering changes in the workplace and the long-term impact on workers, employers, educators, and communities is key to career development work. Mental health and wellbeing have become a focal concern. Technological and social forces are changing how work is done, who does it, and even what work looks like. Both work and the workforce are becoming more flexible. The goal for this presidential series was to create an opportunity to explore current career development concepts, looking at what is temporary, what is transformative and critical implications for career development professionals.
